AKIS

AKIS in the EIP-AGRI spotlight

What is AKIS?

Knowledge and innovation systems (AKIS) help farmers, foresters and rural communities meet current and future challenges. AKIS help farmers, foresters and rural communities get connected, and that knowledge is shared between everyone who uses and applies it. AKIS help farmers, foresters and rural communities develop knowledge and innovation systems (AKIS) are needed across the EU. This will further support the development of innovative solutions that work in practice.

Watch the EIP-AGRI animated video 'AKIS: Building effective knowledge flows across Europe' to see what AKIS stands for, and how it can help tackle current and future challenges for farmers, foresters, rural communities and many others.

The screenshot shows the EU FarmBook website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'Over ons', 'Help', 'LOG IN', and 'EN'. Below the navigation is a search bar with the placeholder 'Search our database...'. To the left of the search bar is a dropdown menu labeled 'I'm interested in' with 'Everything' selected. To the right is a 'Search' button. Below the search area, there is a section titled 'I'm interested in...' featuring six categories, each represented by a thumbnail image and a label: 'Forestry' (a forest scene), 'Livestock' (two cows), 'Environment' (a landscape), 'Crop farming' (a field of wheat), 'Society' (hands holding a plant), and 'Economics' (a market stall with vegetables).

Metadata is the information about the knowledge objects. For example for a book:

- the title of the book,
 - the name of the author(s),
 - the name of the publisher, and
 - the year in which the book was published are metadata for the book (in other words, additional information describing the book).
